

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to an essentially parallelepiped-shaped tool storage device having at least two bodies affixed to one another by at least two fixing points of a pivot axis, one body 5 forming the lid and the other being complementary to the lid-forming body. The lid-forming body is pivot-mounted and includes a pivot axis for opening the device.